Council Starts Action To Form Park District As Tax Base To Buy Natural Areas

Carmel City Council at its meeting last night took first steps toward establishing a park district with taxing powers up to 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Purpose of the district is to finance purchase of land in and around Carmel for parks or natural areas.

Mayor Horace Lyon appointed Councilman Francis Whitaker, who proposed the district, to arrange a date for a meeting of the council with the county board of supervisors so that boundaries of the park district can be established.

If, after holding public hearings, the supervisors approve the district, a five man board will be appointed jointly by the supervisors and the city council. This board will have powers to levy the tax up to 25 cents and purchase land. When their terms expire, membership to the board will be elective.

Whitaker, in proposing the district, said that the city and adjacent unincorporated areas must act quickly before the remaining natural areas are broken up into building lots.

The Carmel Planning Commission, at its last meeting, recommended that the city council initiate such a district so that the Lee Gottfried property on Highway No. 1 in Hatton Fields could be purchased. It is marked for acquisition as a park on Planning Consultant Lawrence Livingston, Jr.'s green belt map. Gottfried, who is a Carmel Planning Commission member, has received county planning commission approval of his subdivision plans for the property but is willing to sell the land for park purposes for $25,000.

At last night's meeting only one councilman raised a question on initiating the park district. John Chitwood said he did not oppose the project but wondered if the timing was right.

"Citizens are talking about five or eight million cost of the master plan for the city. What will they say of this?" he asked.

"The Greenbelt is the one phase of Livingston's plan everybody seems to approve of," commented Mayor Lyon.

Citizens vs. Livingston

Off street parking is of paramount importance to Carmel merchants if they wish to survive the competition of proposed fringe shopping centers Planning Consultant Larry Livingingston, Jr., said to members of the Citizens' Advisory Committee and the Planning Commission at Carmel High School last night.

"If the merchants are in difficulty, the whole town will be in difficulty", he stated. "The city depends on the tax basis of the business district."

As soon as the shopping centers on the outside of Carmel are operating the Carmel merchants will be forced to put in off street parking in order to survive, was his answer to the objections of Gordon Campbell and Paul McKinstry of the Citizens' Committee, to his central district plan.

Campbell felt that the proposed Ocean Avenue Mall and parking lots destroyed the conception of Carmel as a predominately residential town by catering to unwanted tourist trade. Livingston's master plan subordinated the resident to the tourist was Campbell's opinion. The residential area would exist as an auxiliary to a tourist directed center. It was a case of "the tail wagging the dog," he stated. The plan would also "freeze Carmel" into a tourist predominated town.

Farr And Pattee Feeling No Pain; Balchin . . . Ouch!

Unofficial primary election returns show Tom Hudson and incumbent Arch Balchin so close in the supervisor race that there will have to be a run off in the November general election. Hudson polled 4,900 plus; Balchin 4,700 plus.

State Senator Fred Farr and Assemblyman Alan Pattee will not have to run in the general; they won the nomination on both party tickets.

Incumbent Charles M. Teague will have a Democratic party opponent in election to U. S. Congress from the 13th District. He polled 44,000 plus on his own ticket, 18,000 plus on the Democratic. William K. Stewart of Pacific Grove, Democratic candidate, received 31,000 plus votes from his own party; 3,520 Republican votes.

Council vs. Livingston

The tea time (4:00 to 6:00 o'clock) conference yesterday between Lawrence Livingston Jr., and the Carmel Council on Livingston's master plan for Carmel was productive of little, if anything.

The council members asked the same questions and put forth the same objections that they had offered when they met with the planning commission several weeks ago to discuss Livingston's plan; and Livingston gave them the same answers Planning Commissioner Frank Putnam had given them at the earlier meeting.

Nobody "gave" anywhere, least of all Livingston, who told the Council that they were behaving illegally in questioning him or expressing disapproval of the plan at this point, "according to state law." The council will have veto power after the plan has gone through public hearing and been approved by the planning commission.

Councilman Carl Patnude said: "When you try to realize in your mind what makes Carmel different, you think of the way stores, houses, offices and apartments are side by side throughout the business district. To mix things has always been done in Carmel and is part of Carmel. Your plan is a very fine plan, but it is not Carmel."

Livingston: (defending his orange zone) "But that's just what the multiple dwelling zone will be, homes, apartments, mixed with professional offices, churches, clubhouses ,hotels, motels."

"It is not going to be churches and doctors' offices. It will be motels," commented new councilman Jim Buffington, who owns and operates a small apartment

Council Hires Husky Young Woodlander As New Fire Chief

Carmel's new fire chief, Robert Edward Smith, from Woodland, California, was appointed by the City Council last night. He will be the first fire chief to hold a full-time paid job in Carmel.

Smith is 27 years old, six feet, two inches tall, and weights 200 pounds. He is married and the father of two children, two and four years old. He will begin work with the Carmel Fire Department on July 1. At present he is fire marshal for the Woodland fire department.

Among his many recommendations he acts as fire chief of the Woodlands department when his superior officer is absent; holds a vocational teaching credential for fire training from the State of California; a credit certificate from the University of California in city and regional planning; and has had practical arson bureau training with both the Berkeley and Los Angeles fire departments.

MRS. DORMODY APPOINTED TO LIBRARY BOARD

Mrs. Horace Dormody is the new member of the Harrison Memorial Library Board appointed by the city council last night to replace Clayton B. Neill who will retire in July.

Mrs. Dormody, wife of Horace Dormody, M.D., has been a resident of Carmel for 29 years. She was a member of the Carmel Unified School board for seven years, served for two terms as director of the Music Society and been on the board of the Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross.

She is the mother of Pamela, Patrick and Michael Dormody.

CARMEL JUNIOR LEGION CLIPPED BY SALINAS

Carmel's Post 512 Junior Legion baseball squad ran into rough opposition at Salinas last Saturday afternoon and was treated to a 14-1 whipping by the Salinas number one Legion team. Consisting mostly of Salinas High varsity performers, the host squad carried too many guns for the green but hard-trying Carmel lads who were making their first start against varsity competition.

Tim O'Shea started on the mound against the big valley lads and was greeted for five runs in the first inning as Salinas took advantage of five walks, two errors, and a tremendous double by big Chuck Sajonia, Salinas first-baseman. Cim Conway, a recent transfer to Carmel High, took over in the fifth inning and showed good stuff, holding the heavy-hitting Post 31 nine to three hits and a pair of runs in his four-inning stint.

A pair of Carmel eighth grade players, Andy Beck and Mike Mitchell, made the move into varsity ball in good style, handling all their chances without an error and standing up to the classy Salinas pitching with confidence. Malcolm Burdis, Carmel right-fielder, turned in a brilliant game in the field, making several nice catches and throwing out a Salinas runner trying to stretch a single into a double.

This Saturday afternoon the Carmel Legion nine clashes with Monterey Post 41 at El Estero Park in Monterey. Conway will draw the starting mound assignment in this one with O'Shea and Parker Pollock ready for relief action. All Junior Legion games are nine-inning tussles and two or three pitchers are needed over the longer route.

THE SPORT WHEEL

Michela and Jennings Make Debut in Salinas Valley League — Bob Michela and Dick Jennings, Carmel High's all-league battery, made a successful start in the semi-pro Salinas Valley League last Sunday, helping Lavett's All-Stars to an easy victory over the Soledad Prison nine. Jennings worked on the hill for the first five innings, blanking the hard-hitting prisoners and getting three solid hits for himself. Michela did the catching for Lavett's and turned in his usual steady job behind the plate besides banging out a clothesline triple. The ex-Padre stars will be seeing action again this Sunday at El Estero Park where Lavett's entertain the star-studded Salinas C & M Inn at 2 o'clock.

Jim Morton Sidetracks Carmel Merchants in PG Softball Play — Manager Dufur's Carmel Merchant softball team was breezing along in winning fashion in the Pacific Grove Softball Tournament until it came up against the slants of Jim Morton, former Pine Cone pitcher. Big Jim throttled the bats of Dufur's pastimers as he led his Rasmussen and Moody mates to victory over the Merchants. Employing a blazing fast ball with a baffling change of pace, Morton was in control all the way as he earned the verdict over arch-rival Johnny DeAmaral. Little John pitched good ball for the Merchants but the steady play Stan Sutton, Bill Conlan and Morton was too much for the less experienced Merchants. The Carmel Merchants are entered in the Castroville League and will play there every Tuesday night for the rest of the season.

Carmel High Trackmen Win Medals at Hollister Relays—Carmel High's small but talented track team came home from the Hollister relays with a fair share of medals as the two-mile relay team placed fourth, Pierre Olivie took third in the discus, and Mike Mosolf earned a second in the broad-jump. The Padre shuttle hurdle quartet defeated Watsonville but was disqualified because Carmel's third hurdler left the starting line too soon. Mike McCormick, Art Wilkerson, Mervin Sutton, and Hampton Stewart made up the two-mile relay team which placed fourth.

CARMEL HIGH FOOTBALL SCHEDULE SET

An eight-game slate plus the CCAL Jamboree faces the Carmel High football squad next fall as the graduation-riddled Padres put their 1955 B league championship on the block. Brand new opposition faces the Carmel gridders on November 3rd when Sunnyvale High School invades the Padre campus. Sunnyvale is a school of 1200 students but next year will not have a senior class and should be even competition for the smaller Carmel preps. Carmel's other practice game will also be a home affair as the Gustine Indians return seeking revenge for last year's 45-6 lacing.

By league edict, practice will start August 29th in order that all players will have 15 days' practice before playing practice games on September 21st. Opening action is slated for September 14th when the annual CCAL Jamboree takes place at Salinas Stadium.

MIKE MONAHAN IN TV SHOW

Mike Monahan started work this week filming a sequence for Robert Young's Father Knows Best TV show. The series deals with family problems. Mike has the part of the college boy friend of the daughter of the family when she goes away to school. Although the sequence is in production now it will probably not be released over the air until fall. Mike is elated over his new job, as, in show parlance, he now "has film on himself", a step forward for any aspiring young actor.

Mike, his wife, Sherry, and eight months old daughter, Shannon, are making their home in Hollywood. Mike is the son of Mrs. Bruce Monahan of Carmel and the nephew of Alex Gibson. He started his dramatic career as a child at the Forest Theater and progressed through many parts until he became with Ric Masten, Owen Greenan and Don Adams, producer of summer musicals in the Forest Theater. Mike also played on every stage on the peninsula during the time he lived and grew up here, being associated with all the acting groups.

Casting Starts On Sunday For Pharaoh, Good Parts Open

Individual try-outs for Pharaoh have continued through the week, but the main readings for parts in this coming Forest Theater play will be on Sunday afternoon, June 10, at 2:00 o'clock, on the stage of the big open-air theater. No final decisions have been made as yet, so anyone qualifying for a part will get one. There are three big roles for men and two for women, three excellent comedy parts for men, one part for a boy, three good serious parts for men, two short comedy parts, four short character parts, a number of bit parts, one serious short role for a woman, in addition to courtiers, soldiers, etc.

The producing staff is being rapidly formed and so far is tops. Joanne Nix, the brilliant director of the Carmel Ballet Academy, will create and direct the Egyptian dances. John Burr, who has done admirable work in three big Forest Theater shows, will rebuild the settings and stage manage the performances. Hazel McLellan, the costume star of the Forest Theater and other local playhouses, is designing the costumes for Herbert Heron's play, and they will be made under her expert supervision. Roland Scheffler, Shakespeare fan, who ran the lovely lighting for As You Like It, will put his skill into the production of Pharaoh.

Everyone interested in playing a part, or helping in set building, painting, flower decoration, costume cutting and sewing, making or gathering stage properties, or in any of the many big and small things that a Forest Theater production requires, will be heartily welcomed at the Theater on Sunday at 2:00 o'clock.

Cub Pack Three Holds Award Night

Carmel Cub Pack No. 3, sponsored by the Lions Club under the leadership of Cubmaster Commander Tom Eddy, USN, held their 1956 award night on June 1 in Sunset School.

Eagle Scout Rick Stillman, 12, of Fort Ord Troop 100, youngest Eagle Scout in the United States, told of the merits of cubbing and scouting. His father, Colonel Richard Stillman, then addressed the group talking about leadership and character building gained from cubbing which is carried through life. He also stressed the advantages of the new Reserve Forces Act program for young men of Senior High School age. Colonel Stillman is commanding officer of this program at Fort Ord.

The Lions Club received their 1957 charter as sponsors of the pack from Monterey Bay Area Scout Commissioner Bert Lidderdale. They were also given $50 by Webelos award winners Jay Miller and Donnie Kneedler, to be used for the Lions current baseball field project at the High School. The donation represented a large portion of the money earned by the pack selling Scoutorama tickets. The following cubs received awards:

Wolf Award: John La Cava, Peter McArthur.

THRILLED WITH ENGLAND

Dr. K. Fillmore Gray writes from England that he and Mrs. Gray and the two boys, Stanton and Stephen, are traveling about England in a little car which they have named Victoria. So far the Grays have spent time in Devon and Cornwall and Dorset, visited Blenheim Palace and Oxford, and all the cathedral towns along the way.

"I started to keep a list of the churches we went in, but have lost count already," reports Dr. Gray.

They have had delightful weather in which to appreciate the glory of English spring gardens. After two months spent on the continent, the Grays will return to Carmel, and Dr. Gray will resume his duties as pastor of the Church of the Wayfarer.

POSTCARD FROM PETER

Recently retired City Clerk Peter Mawdsley and Mrs. Mawdsley got off last week on their leisurly trip abroad on a frieghter, M. S. Canada. Embarking in Oakland last week, they steamed up the San Joaquin River to Stockton to pick up cargo; back again and then down the coast to San Pedro, where Peter wrote a postcard Monday.

"Expect to sail Tuesday noon. Ship conditions and service very good. Visiting ashore yesterday and today. Haven't really started yet. Enjoyed the river trip to Stockton. Had the ship to ourselves two days and two others from there. Seven or eight more come aboard tonight and then we'll be a complete party for about 30 days. Regards to all Carmel."

After Many Years In A Man's World Elizabeth Gleeson Is In The Midst Of A Galaxy Of Women And Likes It

By Gladys Silva

Holding an office in the National Association of Bank Women can be a busy and fascinating occupation, reports Mrs. Elizabeth C. Gleeson of New York City, who is spending a week in Carmel as the guest of the Abbott Silvas on Carmelo Street.

Mrs. Gleeson is the National Office Secretary of the National Association of Bank women which was founded in 1921, and has a membership of 2400 women bank officials, including presidents, vice-presidents, directors, chairmen of boards, cashiers, and other officers, and those doing executive work.

The National Office in New York City, she explains, serves as a clearing house for the affairs of the Association which are administered by officers and committee chairmen through a Board of Directors. The Western Division, which includes the state of California, has a fast-growing membership, and is under the able leadership of Regional Vice-President Mrs. Marion Anderton of the Bank of America in San Francisco.

Mrs. Gleeson's business career has included varied and important facets of administrative work. It began in the administrative division of an engineering company, and embraced personnel, advertising, public relations, and fact-writing assignments on constructive projects.

"This frequently led to interesting discoveries," she says. "It is related in a trade magazine article that during the remodeling of a plant for a leading southern company they found on the machinery tags attached by General Sherman's army on its March to the Sea some 70 years before."

During World War II Mrs. Gleeson was engaged by an eastern engineering and construction firm which was building government chemical plants. After their completion she was brought to New York by this firm on a lend-lease project for Russia, engineering and buying oil refineries.

On completion of this work she went with an international management engineering firm on a writing assignment to extend its Biography of Experience. This was followed by her present position. She insists that after spending many years in a man's world she has stepped into the midst of a galaxy of women, and likes it!

"The serious side of the work involved in the NABW," says Mrs. Gleeson, "is occasionally lightened by some surprising incident such as a recent letter from a young man in Turkey offering himself in marriage to 'a member' of the association with a bank account sufficient to see him through his law studies in the U. S."

Touring California on a three weeks' vacation is Mrs. Gleeson's present avocation. She has traveled extensively abroad. Her vacation last year took her through the Scandinavian countries and Finland.

"Bess", as she is known to the Silvas, is also an avid philatelist. Consequently her visit with the Silvas has no idle moments betwen sight-seeing trips, because Abbott Silva, the secretary and treasurer of the Peninsula Stamp Club seizes every opportunity to engage the guest on the subject of you know what. From the gabberty-hash (G. Silva's word) overheard, both host and guest should certainly have profited stamp-wise from this enjoyable visit.

Creative writing is one of Mrs. Gleeson's hobbies, but to date her most prolific efforts along this line have been ghost writing for business brochures. She now thinks the time has come to step out boldly and claim her own rights to literary expression. She is sure that being exposed to Carmel's artistic atmosphere, although for all too short a time, has now provided the necessary "push."

4 Students Receive Pine Cone Annual Conservation Prize

The annual Pine Cone Conservation prize was awarded to students of the Biology Department at the annual awards assembly at Carmel High School on Thursday afternoon.

First place winner was Tim O'Shea for his report on the problems of Conservation of Fish in the Carmel River. He pointed out a need for control of water so that pools would be maintained throughout the year.

Parker Pollock won second place for his understanding of forestry problems. Third place was tied by Robert Wands and Cary Edson. Robert Wands showed concern for our Wilderness Areas. He stated "Our wilderness areas are in danger of being taken away from us for other uses. We must realize that in order to preserve this national heritage we must be constantly alert or it may be lost for future generations." His appreciation of a wilderness stems from his personal contacts in such areas in Wyoming and in Colorado.

Several previous winners of this Pine Cone Reward from Carmel High School are in college courses now as they prepare for careers in Conservation, Wildlife Management and Forestry.

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by
C. Edward Graves
Western Representative,
National Parks Association

GREAT BASIN RANGE NATIONAL PARK

Many conservationists feel that more attention should be given to establishing new national parks. Not enough areas of outstanding scenic and scientific interest have been set aside for "the enjoyment of future generations", to quote from the National Park Service Act of 1916. Many areas of this kind that conform to desirable national park standards have not been set aside because of local opposition from those who claim that it would "lock up" natural resources. When therefore such a desirable area has been found that is backed enthusiastically by local interests, conservationists are very glad to cooperate with them in developing the project.

A few weeks ago I was asked by the Sierra Club and my own Association to represent them at a meeting in Ely, Nevada, where a project of this kind was under consideration. Lehman Caves National Monument, a mile-square area set aside to preserve a remarkable series of limestone caves, lies on the eastern slopes of Wheeler Peak at an elevation of 6800 feet. The surrounding area is included in the Nevada National Forest, and Wheeler Peak, elevation 13,061 feet, is the highest point in the region.

Last September Weldon Heald of Tucson, Arizona, conservationist and travel writer, investigating vague reports of a possible glacier on the slopes of Wheeler Peak, made a trip to the mountain in company with a friend, Albert Marshall, of Three Rivers, California. After some very difficult climbing they finally verified the fact that a small but active glacier, "roughly triangular in shape whose greatest dimension probably does not exceed 2000 feet", lies in a cirque above which the precipitous cliffs of Wheeler Peak rise vertically on the eastern side for some 2000 feet.

The fact that this is the only known glacier in the Great Basin lying between the Rockies and the Sierra Nevada, and that in five horizontal miles the ascent of Wheeler Peak goes through five life zones, from the Upper Sonoran to the Arctic-Alpine, makes the area unique from a scientific standpoint. The spectacular scenery of the great peak with its tremendous cirque, comparable to the famous east face of Long's Peak in Colorado, and the unusually beautiful subalpine meadows and lakes and forests, combine to give the area the necessary qualifications as a unit of the national park system.

Mr. Heald and I spent one day climbing as far as possible up the slopes of the mountain, which at this time of year is covered with deep snow above 8500 feet, and one day meeting with local committees in Ely, the nearest city 65 miles away. All angles of the situation were canvassed carefully. Some opposition comes from a handful of stockmen who would lose their grazing privileges at present allotted by the Forest Service, but the region is too rough for extensive grazing and it is not believed that this opposition will be too serious.

The National Park Service and the U. S. Forest Service have agreed to make a joint survey of the region in the early summer. Future development of the project will depend mainly on their findings.

Audience Pleased With Final Concert At Craft Center

By Mary Lindsay-Oliver

The Carmel Chamber Music Society presented Alexandra Tearo, soprano, at the Carmel Art Craft Center on Sunday evening, to an audience most of whom had heard her earlier in the season. Tearo is one of the latest additions to our resident professional musicians. Her program was a comprehensive one of old and modern excerpts from the classics, and songs in manuscript by two local writers — one by Chordas (words by Severanin) — and one by Hascal Stewart (words and music). It was an assortment to tax the most enduring voice and pianist, and both Tearo and Gilbert Boyer carried it off with much eclat, and with a brilliancy that, at times, could have gained from greater modulation. The strength and exuberance in the artist's voice predominated, which, in the last group of Russian composers, which so admirably suited her temperament, carried her performance to a telling climax.

Opening with piano accompaniment alone, Handel's Lusinghe piu care from his opera Allesandro was followed by L'amero saro constante from Mozart's festival opera Il re pastore, performed in 1775 at the Court of the Archduke Maximilian, with violin and 'cello parts admirably played by William Buckminster and Jerald Slavich in a good ensemble. The Debussy recitative and aria from L'Enfant Prodigue, four numbers from Brahms' Zigeunerlieder, and the Schubert Und dem Storm were emotionally stirring, with a French horn added to the Schubert, played by Barbara Mitchell, substituting for Joseph Axup.

Death of the Lily by Chordas and The Moving Moon by Hascal Vaughan Stewart(the latter given its first performance) both required more hearing to do justice to them as compositions, but they were received with appreciation, and Hascal Stewart was applauded when she was found to be present. She writes in a kind of atonality and broken rhythms, difficult to assimilate at first hearing but inventive faculty in a modern genre is evident in her work and her scores are models of clear penmanship. An aria from The Snowmaiden by Rimsky-Korsakoff, the Tchaikowsky Cradle Song and Moussorgsky's area from Sorochinzi Fair in ensemble with 'cello and violin obligato, composed by Kreisler, with the singer's particular feeling for Russian music, rounded out a fine performance. Boyer scored with this a notable addition to the music already performed by the Chamber Music group, and, judging from the final applause, greatly pleased the audience. A second summer program will be given in August.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

We are trying to work gradually into a new system in handling fiction. We have a dual problem, in that we would like to have some new fiction on the shelves for the casual person who just happens into the library for a recent novel, and we would also like to have a system of reserve on new fiction for the regulars who never miss a week in the library and religiously put their names down for the new books as they appear on the examination shelves. And we have found that the old adage about eating cake and still having it is all too true, meaning that it just isn't possible to do a thing like that on a small budget. So we are going to try to cut down on reserves for rental books and make the rental collection mainly, but not entirely, a duplicate collection. And on fiction in the regular collection we take reserves, and we still put them on the examination shelves to gather up their waiting lists. We can't start this right off because we have miles of waiting lists on lots of new rental books, but we shall sort of sit back and let it evolve as the summer goes on. And eventually the reader will be able to make a choice. He can add his name to the waiting list on a new novel and await his turn, or he can pick it up as the opportunity comes, and pay a small fee per week to read it. Theoretically, he should be able to get it sooner from the rental shelves, but actually no one can guarantee that because of the great demand for fiction at this library.

Speaking of reserves, (and reserves is the term we use when we mean that we hold the book for you three days or until you come in to get it after we have written you a postal card), perhaps you would be interested to know that we sent out 1,140 of them last month. It's getting to be quite a business.

Other statistics show that your library's services are growing. Considering the circulation in three year periods, in May of 1950 the library charged out 8,126 books, in May of 1953 the circulation figure was 7,372, and this month in 1956 we charged out 11,195 books.

The Changing Forms of Art is a book length treatise on modern art by Partick Heron, who is an outstanding British artist. Dr. Clarence Salsbury went to Arizona in 1937 as a medical missionary to the Indians. He planned to stay only a short while, but his short while lasted for twenty-three years. Florence Crannel Means has written his story in her book Sagebrush Surgeon. Gifted men and women, famous artists and writers of early San Francisco, people the pages of Oscar Lewis' new book Bay Window Bohemia. The photographs which illustrate it are most interesting.

There are two new biographies, one by Alden Hatch entitled Ambassador Extraordinary, which is the story of Clare Booth Luce, and another by Michael Carrouges which is called Soldier of the Spirit. The second one is the life story of Charles de Foucauld who was known as Brother Charles of Jesus.

The complete book of skin diving is by the Carriers and is called Dive. All phases of this popular sport are covered in the book, and the many illustrations are photographs and line drawings.

There is more non-fiction, and there are also eight novels, of which four will go out for waiting lists and four will go directly into the rental shelves. Happy reading!

Skiing In June

Mary Stewart Hoopes, secretary at Sunset School and skiing enthusiast, took Cary and Toby Edson and Doyle Clayton to Sonora Pass last week end on a combination camping and skiing trip. They set up camp at Chipmunk Flat as close as they could get to the summit and walked to a bowl in the hills for their skiing. The snow is still seven and eight feet deep along the roadsides and the pass is closed. Only a few sun holes marred the skiing in the area.

Dr. and Mrs. Van Niel Back

After over a year of European travel, Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Van Niel are back in Carmel in time for Dr. Van Niel to begin teaching summer courses in microbiology this month at the Hopkins Marine Station.

While the Van Niels were abroad they visited in England, Scotland, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France, Switzerland, Italy and Israel, where Dr. Van Niel met many of his former Stanford students and found out what was being done in his particular field in European universities.

On their return the Van Niels met, for the first time, their newest grandchild, eight months old Michelle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Winning (Ruth Van Niel) and sister to five year old Kerste, all living in Berkeley.

In a few days another grandchild, Kenneth Scott Went, will come with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Went (Esther Van Niel) to spend the summer with the Van Niels while Hans studies at Hopkins Marine Station with Dr. Van Niel in preparation for his master's degree.

Jan Van Niel is out of the army, having completed his two years' service, and after a summer at home, plans to return to Stanford. "It's good to be back in Carmel," says Mrs. Van Niel, "and have the family about after so long an absence."

Symphony Picnic At Dixons

Each summer, at the close of the Symphony season, the board of directors of the Monterey County Symphony Association have a picnic for members of the orchestra and their families at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Franklin Dixon in Carmel Valley. This year's picnic was on Sunday when D. MacMillan Kerr, picnic chairman, in a fine tartan cap, cooked innumerable hot dogs for hungry small fry and adults. He was assisted in the preparations by Mrs. Kerr and board members. Lunch over, the younger guests spent the afternoon playing on the Dixons' spacious lawns, swimming in the natural pool formed by diverting water from the Carmel River, or just exploring the surrounding river bed; while older persons sat about the patio listening to a splendid tape recording of the last Symphony concert.

Everyone was delighted to have Mr. and Mrs. Dixon with them again this year for the annual treat. Last year the Dixons were in the Far East at the time of the picnic.

On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Dixon moved from their winter house in Carmel for a summer at their valley home.

Surprise For Miss Lindsay-Oliver

Voice pupils of Mary Lindsay-Oliver surprised their teacher on Sunday afternoon by singing Happy Birthday to her as she entered her home after the Symphony picnic. They had prepared a tea table in her absence which was centered with an arrangement of pink rosebuds, about which they had placed pastel iced cupcakes, topped with tiny candles, to spell out Miss Lindsay-Oliver's initials. Each one present was asked to make a wish for World Peace in honor of Miss Linday-Oliver's dramatic symphonic composition, The New Day. Present to surprise their teacher were Joan Jenkins, Dick Boolootian, Lewis Perkins, Marcia Pratt, David and Joanne Schoenbrod, Richard Turner and Valerie Hattery, who arranged the surprise party. During the afternoon they all took part in an impromptu program featuring operatic solos, ballads and sacred music.

Spencers Back In Carmel

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Spencer were greeted at the airport on Thursday evening by the same group of friends who had bidden them farewell two months ago when they left for Europe. Glad to be home again the Spencers report they "saw no place more beautiful than Carmel" and "met friendly people everywhere."

They flew the Polar route to Copenhagen, arriving and leaving in a snow storm, and were delighted when they landed in Rome, their next stop, and found warm sunshine. They were joined in Florence by John Driver, former Carmel resident who now makes his home in Berne, Switzerland, and he showed the Spencers his favorite places in Italy and Switzerland before leaving them to explore Germany, Austria, France and England by themselves. They finished their European trip in Copenhagen where they again flew the trans-polar route home.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Joy (Schatzi Herron) sent word on Monday that their daughter, Linda, had arrived that day in Boston, Massachusetts, weighing seven and a half pounds. Grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Jack Herron are delighted with the news. They now have a granddaughter as well as a grandson, the Joys' older child, two year old Christopher. Schatzi and her husband have been living in Cambridge, Massachusetts, while Leonard attended Harvard Law School. He graduates this month and after he has been admitted to the New York State Bar this summer will move his family to New York City where he will join the law firm of Hughes, Hubbard, Blair and Reid.

Aunt Gretchen Herron will be back in Carmel on June 15, having completed her studies at Armstrong's Business College in Berkeley.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The safety and abundance which can be experienced through reliance on God will be a theme developed at Christian Science services this Sunday.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon entitled "God the Preserver of Man" is the Golden Text from Psalms 37 (39,40): "The salvation of the righteous is of the Lord: he is their strength in the time of trouble. And the Lord shall help them, and deliver them."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read the following (494:10-11): "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need."

Selections to be read from the King James Version of the Bible will include the following (Psalms 121:8): "The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore."

hotel. He had another thought to offer in support of Councilman Francis Whitaker's complaint that the orange zone is too large and should not be allowed to encroach on the residence area. Buffington said that now, because of the limited number of accommodations available, the type of tourist who stays in Carmel can be controlled, but with the creation of a large multiple dwelling zone, the number of motels would increase until competition among them would be such that "they would have to take any kind of tourist to stay in business."

Livingston: "Unless you provide for expansion of tourist accommodations you will find that the pressure will be so great that there will spring up little disjointed spots for tourist accommodations throughout the area."

Whitaker: "Tourists would rather stay in Carmel but when they can't get accommodations in Carmel, they stay in the motels in Monterey, and Monterey will keep right on building them."

Livingston said that the council could control the size of the orange zone by "expanding" zoning ordinances, creating additional orange zone as needed. "I wouldn't recommend opening all the orange zone immediately. Every real estate dealer would raise an outcry over the upset in property values." He added that one of the purposes of the orange zone was to provide a place for guest houses scattered throughout the residence district.

"I myself do not think these little guest houses are terribly important," Livingston said. "But the planning commission and the citizens' committee want to get rid of them."

Asked how these guest houses in the residence zone would be put out of business, Livingston said that the owners would be given sufficient time to amortize their investment and then they could not continue in business. Further questioned by City Attorney Tom Perry, Livingston said this procedure would apply also to businesses now in operation in those parts of the business district that he has set aside for multiple use in his orange zone. The courts uphold the cities in the procedures, he said.

Asked what would be the procedure if someone should wish to build on a lot that has been set aside in the plan for parking in the red zone (business) Livingston said the council would condemn and buy the land for parking. This could be financed in three ways: parking district (Carmel has tried to get one started several times) bond election, or purchase by individual merchants.

John Chitwood pointed out that the plan was geared for 25 years hence: "Is there anything we can do immediately? We must buy land while it is still available."

Livingston said this would be included in his instructions to the council after the plan was adopted. "It confuses people to show zoning maps and planning maps at the same time," he said.

Whitaker, Mayor Horace Lyon and Patnude raised objections to the concentration of all traffic entering and leaving town on a four lane Junipero Street.

Whitaker: "I can just visualize a sign greeting people as they turn off the freeway into the four lane Junipero Street: "Signals set for 25 miles per hour all through town." Whitaker said that with all the traffic now carried by three streets channeled into one, Carmel would have a highway through town. "Twenty years ago the state highway department wanted to put Highway No. 1 through Carmel on Junipero Street and the people wouldn't have it, so the state put it where it is now. Then the state wanted to make Highway No. 1 a freeway and the people fought it. Now we'd be doing something the people didn't want 20 years ago, and I don't think they want it now."

The mayor said traffic plans should be designed to accommodate the residents, not the tourits. This could be better achieved by dispersing traffic rather than by concentration.

Livingston said that, for safety and economy, it was a cardinal principle of planning to concentrate traffic on as few streets as possible. He added that the Hatton Canyon freeway couldn't be built for ten years or more and the four lane Junipero shouldn't be built until the freeway is. If it were, it would, of course, become a throughway.

Attorney Perry told the council that Carmel Unincorporated wish- to engage Livingston to make a study of advantages and disadvantages of incorporation with Carmel, if Carmel would pay half Livingston's fee.

Council members said that such a study should be made, but no action could be taken at the informal meeting.

discussion of the central district brought out the fact that if 50 per cent downtown parking were provided by Livingston's planned off street parking lots "it would mean destroying half of the existing business district on which the citizens depend," as Livingston previously remarked.

McKinstry was in favor of discontinuing all discussion of the controversial central district plan and concentrating on the outside area plans which meet with the approval of all the citizens. He was supported in this stand by George Bestor, citizens' committee chairman, who felt that the central district representing five per cent of the plan was so unpleasant to the people of Carmel that they would unconsiously repudiate the other 95 percent of Livingston's plan, embodying ideas desired by the citizens.

Thomas Elston told Livingston that his central district plan had lost sight of the desires of the citizens' committee. They wished the business district to remain "much as now" and thought that the outside shopping areas to be developed would relieve Carmel of much of its parking problem.

Livingston replied that his proposed 1,000 off street parking stalls are not adequate to meet outside competition but do represent a basic minimum of off street parking for the existing business district, still retaining the charm and character of Carmel.

Donald Craig did not like the destruction of "the informal atmosphere" of Carmel in Livingston's plan. "I object strenuously to formalizing the town," he said, "the Mall is fine, but not for Carmel!"

"Carmel is 25 years behind the times now" he continued, "why not in 1981 be where we should be in 1956." This remark was prompted by Livingston's asking the audience to project themselves into 1981 to visualize his plan.

Gladys Johnston twice urged those present to consider the educated opinions presented in Livingston's plan.

Herbert Heron objected to the proposed extension of the central business district to the north. He pointed out that, through negligence on the part of Carmel people, the southern fringe of the present business district around Eighth Street had "spotty" commercial uses. He would prefer that any extension of the existing business zone occur in this already partially destroyed residential area, rather than completely destroying desirable residential property around Fourth Street, as proposed in Livingston's plan.

The meeting ended when the time designated for use of the school library expired at 10:00 o'clock, and those present were twice plunged into darkness by the light being turned off as warning that it was time to leave.

Benny Bufano At Carmel Gallery In Free Lecture

Tomorrow evening, California's most discussed sculptor, Beniamino Bufano, will lecture at the Carmel Art Association Gallery at 8:00 o'clock. The talk has been arranged by Mrs. Frank Creede, a former pupil of Benny's and a member of the Carmel Crafts' Guild under whose auspices Bufano will make his Carmel appearance. The public is invited free of charge.

This is not Bufano's first visit to Carmel. In 1942 he presented to the city a steel and granite statue of Bach which was erected in the Plaza. A short time after, the head of the statue mysteriously disappeared and Carmelites went around looking suspiciously at one another . . . and Benny. The head was found . . . or was it? Anyway Benny's Bach was not to be a permanent park resident.

His work is internationally known and he has recently returned from Italy where he was commissioned to create sculptures for a church in Rome.

Boy For Joanie and Alan

Augustus Graves Kirk was born on May 10, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Kirk (Joanie Carr) of Radnor, Pennsylvania. He has been named after his father's grandfather. Carmel grandmother of young Gus is Mrs. Virginia Carr. His greatgrandmother is Mrs. Marion Karr of Carmel, and his uncle and aunt are Mr. and Mrs. Dick Perkins (Biz Carr) of Manhattan Beach, whose son, Sabin, is the new baby's slightly older cousin.

The Kirks plan to visit in Carmel this summer. Alan graduates from the University of Pennsylvania Law School on June 13 and then will prepare for his bar examinations on July 30. Immediately after this the Kirks will drive to Carmel to stay until the the fall.
